

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

Stone Figure.

THE Stone Figure, described at the commencement of this Work, and then lying on the South Side of the Nave, has since been removed into Saint Mary's Porch, where it was originally placed. It has been cleaned, and its general appearance so materially improved, that the publisher has been induced to give a new engraving of it ; and he is now enabled to describe it with some degree of precision, and to correct the errors contained in former accounts. The figure is recumbent, having its legs crossed ; it is habited in a hauberk of chain mail, and surcoat, with a sword and shield of arms ; at its feet is a lion. On the left side of the effigies there is a part of a figure, with the arms expanded, the right hand being held up to the sword, and the left, which is much mutilated, stretched towards the shield.

This beautiful monument displays in very high relief a full length figure of the deceased, as large as life, dressed in a Roman toga, and standing in a graceful and dignified attitude. His right hand rests upon an altar or pedestal, and grasps a roll; at the foot of the pedestal lies a volume, inscribed "Magna Charta"; behind the figure is seen a curule chair, underneath which are placed the fasces and scales, in allusion to the senatorial and magisterial functions of the deceased, whilst a military standard, on the top of which is a lion, is seen leaning against the pedestal; above the standard hangs a shield charged with the family arms. Quarterly, 1st and 4th gules, on a chevron between three hawks, argent, as many pellets, for Ridley. 2nd and 3rd argent, three cocks heads erased sable, combed and wattled gules, for White. On an escutcheon of pretence, argent, on a chevron between three hunting horns sable, stringed of the same, and garnished or, as many mullets of the last, for Colborne. Plate 52. At top of all these is placed a helmet. The face of the figure is a correct likeness of the deceased; the whole, indeed, but particularly the drapery, is a most exquisite performance.

MOTTO.—IN CÆLO QUIES.

AN elegant gothic monument to the memory of Col. Bewicke, of Close House, was, this week, erected in St. Nicholas' church, in this town, by Mr Bailey, A. R. A. It is of white marble. On a pedestal, to which there is an ascent by steps, is a full length of the Colonel, in a sitting posture (a capital likeness) supported by a Female, whose hand he grasps. A figure of Hope stands in front, pointing to an Angel above, holding a scroll, inscribed "Blessed are they that mourn, for they shall be comforted."* The upper part of the monument consists of a fine pointed arch, crowned with a pinacled pediment; the whole displays great delicacy, and richness of detail.

A part of this monument was exhibited in the Royal Academy, Somerset House, London, in May, 1819. The following critique is copied from The Examiner Newspaper of that date:—

"MR. BAILEY has beautifully executed a monument to the memory of Col. Bewicke, from a graceful design of the late classical sculptor, MR THEED. It is of a female sunk on the shoulder, and holding the hand of her husband, who is looking up as if, in a "silent soft address," he was invoking a blessing upon the disconsolate mourner. The performance touches the heart to its centre. It has much of the rhetoric of actual life, when the bitterness of parting in death occurs between friends, the soul's anguish rejects all wonted enjoyments, the garden of the world appears as a gloomy wilderness, and the days of peace to be departed."

IN the latter end of the year 1810, a beautiful monument was erected in St. Mary's Porch, to the memory of the late Rev. Hugh Moises, A. M. of this town. The expences were defrayed by a subscription among his pupils. The monument is of fine white marble, executed by Flaxman, and represents Religion, in the form of a female, with her eyes fixed on heaven, and leaning on a cippus, which is surmounted by an urn : on the side of the cippus is an admirably executed medalion of the venerable divine. A tablet beneath bears the following inscription, from the classical pen of the Right Hon. Sir William Scott, one of his most distinguished pupils :—

* We have this week to conclude our obituary with the melancholy account of the death of Charles Atkinson, Esq. an Alderman of this Corporation, whose worth and virtues will long be held in respect, and his unhappy fate deplored by all who knew him. On Sunday morning last, walking with his son amongst his Coal Works, near Dumfermline, in Scotland, he went to examine the mouth of an old pit, and whilst looking down, a piece of timber on which he stood gave way, and precipitated him to the bottom, a depth of about forty fathoms, ten of which were supposed to be filled with water. It was several hours before his remains, which were considerably mangled, could be recovered.—Newcastle Courant, Feb. 18, 1797.

CHAPELS OF EASE

TO

St. Nicholas.

SOUTH GOSFORTH,

OR Gosford, is a chapel of ease to St. Nicholas, and is situated two miles and a quarter north-east from Newcastle. Robert Lisle, of Gosford, gave to his son, Otwell Lisle, with Isabel, his wife, in frank marriage, South Gosford, with the advowson of the church and mill, &c. This Robert Lisle married the daughter of Richard Canvill, who, with the consent of his wife, gave him Gosford, in Northumberland; and King Henry II., by his charter, confirmed the gift. In the year 1377, the advowson of the church of South Gosford was disputed between the King, the Bishop and Prior of Carlisle, and Matthew Bolton, clerk, vicar of Newcastle. In 1391, Sir Robert Lisle was presented with the lordship of Gosford, with the mill and advowson of the church by his elder brother, Thomas Lisle. This Sir Robert Lisle, Knt. married Mary, one of the daughters and heirs of Aymer, of Athol, uncle to David Strabolgie, Earl of Athol. This Adamar, or Aymer, of Athol, lived at Jesmond, and was buried with his lady in the Trinity Chapel, in St. Andrew's Church, in Newcastle. By an agreement made between Humphrey Lisle, Esq. and the Vicar of Newcastle upon Tyne, March the 20th, 1494, the former appears to have quitted his claim to the advowson of South Gosford.

This church was re-built about the year 1798, and considerably enlarged A. D. 1819.
